

"THE BARKER," FIRST NATIONAL'S SENSATIONAL TALKING DRAMA OF CARNIVAL LIFE, FOR T & D

Pungent Dialogue
Is Big Feature of Colorful Film Play

"THERE YOU ARE, FOLKS! THE BIGGEST SHOW ON EARTH!"

"That's 'The Barker' talking—smooth as marble and twice as hard—the flashy speller of the carnival crying out the lure of the midway—hating, fighting, loving. You'll revel in 'The Barker,' First National's great talking drama of carnival life, which will be the next attraction at the T&D with Milton Sills, Dorothy Mackall and Betty Compton in the leading roles.

Here, for the first time, is the showdown on the touring tent show racket with its blazing color, its loves and hates, its passions, raw and naked, lying behind the painted smiles of the players.

"The Barker" brings to you the voice of the carnival—its music, its clamor, the whining calliope, and the belly-dance of its spicers.

You will hear, too, the impassioned speech of its characters, colorful and picturesque.

A boy and his girl—a man and his "woman"—a tale of degradation and of a love born anew—that's "The Barker."

T&D THEATRE
11th and Franklin
Starts
FRIDAY Feb. 15

"STEP RIGHT UP, FOLKS"

"See the biggest feature attraction your money ever bought. Princess Kalima from the sands of Waikiki. Her shivery dancing makes old men young and young men old. She'll shake your blues away."

"And Lou the little Snake Charmer. She winds dangerous reptiles around her body and sugar daddies around her finger."

"And Tattooed Tom, the Sailor. Evergreen of his body covered with scenes."

"Mystic Myria. She tells your past, present and future. Cross her palms with silver and she brings out the hidden secrets of your friends and enemies."

See them all in one great show—then step behind the scenes and take a peep into their real lives. See the Barker, two-fisted, hard, fearless and feared; and a woman who framed his son, because he was sharing the love she wanted all for herself.

TWO NEW MEMBERS ON WELFARE BOARD

FIFTY-SEVEN CHILDREN
UNDER SUPERVISION OF DEPARTMENT

Clubs Who Wish to Sew for Well-fare Work Asked to Communicate with Mrs. A. A. Hatch.

Two new members were welcomed to the Board of the Children's Department at its meeting Thursday morning at the Niles library, Mrs. George Walters being present as the representative of the Southern Alameda County Parent-Teachers' Associations and the name of Mrs. Emma Perera, of Hayward, being announced as the representative of all Portuguese societies in this vicinity.

In the absence of President E. W. Burr, Mrs. W. H. Ford, vice-president, presided.

A report from the Welfare office at Hayward showed fifty-seven children now under the supervision of the department, five of these being in the Children's Home at Niles. The infant reported at the home last month has been placed with foster parents in Hayward. Forty-two of these children are in boarding homes with foster parents. Seventeen of these are in Catholic homes, eight in protestant homes and the others in homes classed as both.

A letter from the Social Service Board of Alameda was read, information being sought as to budget, management, source of income, etc., of the Children's Home at Niles as an aid to the establishment of a similar home in Alameda.

It was decided that a list of the names, ages, sizes and sexes of the fifty-seven children be given to the various organizations interested in Welfare Work in order that a more personal touch might be established between the children and the organizations sewing for them or aiding them in any other way necessary. In this way each club will have a small family of its own.

Any club wishing to have a "family" designated for its special service should communicate with Mrs. A. A. Hatch, of Niles, chairman of the clothes committee. She will tell them what sewing and other work needs to be done for the particular children assigned to them.

Dad's Dinner Given by Niles Parent-Teachers Big Success

The "Dad's" dinner given by the Niles Parent-Teachers' association Tuesday evening definitely established the fact that fathers are parents and is the starting point for a program including them in the activities of the association. Mrs. Harvey Braun, president, states that she hopes to have at least one more evening meeting this year at which the fathers will present.

The next regular meeting will be held March 12 at 2 o'clock at the school.

About 50 attended the dinner. Principal E. D. Bristow gave a talk expressing his appreciation for the work of the P.T.A. and the fact that he would have some comrades in arms with the new members. Following the dinner, a short program was given in the auditorium, including numbers by Arnold Abbott, Muriel Fournier and three-part songs by the seventh and eighth grades. A number of the pupils aided in the serving of the dinner.

In the card game, only the men were eligible to win prizes. E. E. Dias, E. A. Ellsworth, E. B. Hodges, George L. Donovan, C. E. Martenstein and J. E. Townsend were among those who won cakes and pies.

Out-of-town visitors included Mr. and Mrs. Bulger, of Hayward, Mrs. Siggs, of Valle Vista, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crawford, of San Leandro.

As this meeting was also a celebration of Founders' Day, Mrs. C. E. Martenstein made a birthday cake bearing the four candles representing Home, State, Church and School, a special vote of thanks being given for this most ornamental and delectable addition to the evening.

Mrs. Roland Bendel was general chairman for the evening.

Smallpox Postpones Game Violation Case

Due to the fact that Earl Teeter's family is quarantined with smallpox, the case against Teeter, Eddie Secada and Wm. Farrel, of Niles, has been postponed indefinitely.

The men are charged with a violation of the state game law.

The E. A. Grau vineyard, near Irvington, is never visited by frost.

Tropical plants can be grown out-doors in the vicinity of Irvington.

Wood Blocks To Be At Premium Later

Due to different buying arrangements, the supply of blocks for fuel from the International Wood Products company will diminish to a great extent, announces Jack Crawford.

Much of the material for the Kraft Cheese boxes is secured now from Oakland concerns, short-length waste pieces being excellent material for the work at the Niles concern and in turn producing much less waste.

From 3,000 to 4,000 loads of blocks per year have been delivered in the past, many people of this locality depending upon this fuel for all their heat, cooking, etc.

The GREATER HUDSON

and Motordom calls for
LARGEST HUDSON output of all time

Already in response to the public's demand, production of the Greater Hudson has been increased, and then increased again — by far the largest schedule Hudson ever found necessary.

In their own words, by their marked and recorded ballots, motorists by tens of thousands are telling us the Greater Hudson is truly the greatest of all time.

Voting in every Hudson salesroom in the country, these enthusiastic multitudes have piled up the most convincing endorsement in Hudson history. Perhaps even more important, they have bought these beautiful new Hudsons in such numbers that we must make thousands more of them to insure prompt delivery.

Every experience and suggestion of the world's largest 6-cylinder ownership is incorporated in the 64 improvements of the Greater Hudson.

As co-authors of these creations the 1,000,000 Super-Six owners are naturally first to want to see, inspect and drive them. It is particularly interesting to observe their special satisfaction in the numerous body improvements. In comment, these important developments in body design and appointment, fully equal the more dramatic qualities of the more than 80-mile-an-hour performance.

They definitely set Hudson apart from like-priced cars, just as Hudson performance stands alone among all cars.

Come, see and drive the Greater Hudson. We believe one ride will make it the car of your choice.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," on the fringe of the "cow country," a stranger applied for work as a cowboy. He was engaged by the owner, Williamette Ann Warren—known to all as "Billie." The girl, who was the original owner of the place, the question whether the territory is to remain "cow country" or be opened to settlement is a troublesome one.

CHAPTER II.—Cattle "rustlers" have been troubling the ranch owners, the Three Bar, with a girl boss. The new hand gives his name as Cal Harris. By his announcement in favor of "squatters" he incurs the enmity of a rider known as Morrow. The will made by Cal Warren stipulated that half the property should go to the son of his old friend, William Harris, under certain conditions. The new arrival is the man, and he discloses the fact to Billie. The girl is surprised, for she has long known that the man, who takes counsel with her friend, the ranch cook, "Waddles," He quiets her fears.

CHAPTER III.—Harris' method of wearing the inevitable "gun" rather than the "saddle" is a subject of discussion. She admits she is impressed by his manner. Slade, a ranchman with an unsavory reputation as a "lawyer," is introduced. He is a man who wanted to marry her, but she dislikes and fears him. Slade, endeavoring to embrace Billie, is interrupted by Harris. The men, on the verge of a gun play, are quieted by the arrival of a man named Waddles. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established.

CHAPTER IV.—The regular calf roundup is begun. While the riders are at their work, Harris is allowed on the range, six outsiders join them. Billie knows them to be "rustlers," who, under the leadership of Slade, are a man named Harper, have in the past stolen Three Bar cattle. To test Harris' courage the girl appoints him temporary foreman, suggesting that he order the visitors to leave. Slade, who is a man of the law, is established. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established.

CHAPTER V.—Riding with Billie, a man, presumably Morrow, shoots at Harris. Three Bar riders start in pursuit of Morrow. One of the riders, an unnamed man, is killed. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established.

CHAPTER VI.—The settlers begin to arrive, all men well armed and capable of fighting. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established.

CHAPTER VII.—Carlos Deane, a Denver lawyer, deeply in love with Billie, visits the outfit. Barton, a notorious rustler, is introduced. He demonstrates with Billie for encouragement. The girl denies him, and he threatens to "break" her. Three Bar riders, Magill, is killed. All realize that the rustler is carrying out his threat of vengeance for Bangs' murder.

CHAPTER VIII.—Sheriff Alden begins a search for the slayer of the rustlers, but can get no evidence. Deane urges Billie to marry him and get away from such scenes of violence, but the girl's heart is set on the rehabilitation of the ranch. She puts him off. At a dance given to celebrate the completion of the roundup, and at which Billie is present, Foster kills a rustler named Lank. Deane and Morrow, who are rustlers, are introduced. They resist, and in the fight Morrow is killed and Slade made a prisoner.

CHAPTER IX.—Cabiners are rapidly being erected and land is being set apart for cultivation. The Three Bar riders, on the way to the railroad, are ambushed, evidently at the instigation of Slade, but little harm is done. Harris is convinced a rustler named Lank did the actual stampeding. Billie makes a grim determination to wage a fight to the finish against the outlaw who has terrorized the law-abiding element of the community.

CHAPTER X.—Rumor, fostered by Harris, that the Three Bar has set a price on the heads of fifteen of the best known rustlers creates uneasiness among the "bad men" of the neighborhood. Sheriff Alden begins to enroll deputies. A year has passed since the actual stampeding. The Three Bar and the place has become a beehive of activity. The sheriff, with Harris and Waddles, endeavor to arrest Slade and Morrow. They resist, and in the fight Morrow is killed and Slade made a prisoner.

CHAPTER XI.—With most of the Three Bar riders away, their cattle are being driven to the railroad. Harris, with Waddles and Billie, stand off the attackers until the riders return. Enormous damage has been done, but Harris is not dismayed. A sheriff's posse and the Three Bar men attack a stockade. Harris' headquarters, from which the attack on the ranch had been made, and practically wipe out the desperadoes. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established.

CHAPTER XII.—City life calls on Billie, and she longs for the open air and the freedom of the open range. She learns, also, that Slade has been released, and fears for Harris' safety. At Coldriver, the settlement nearest to the Three Bar, her train pulls in at the moment of a duel to the death between Harris and Slade, in which the latter is killed. Next day, unannounced, she goes to the ranch to find the nucleus of a prosperous community where a colorful and peaceful life is being lived. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established. Harris, who is a man of the law, is established.

The days of the open range in the cattle industry were as romantic as anything that ever occurred under the stars. The owners of important brands were veritable barons in their respective territories, and their own laws—unwritten but none the less effective—were kept large forces of retainers to protect their rule. These helpers were selected for their physical courage no less than their ability as ranch hands, and were capable of being changed in a moment into a fighting force—a sort of irregular, but highly efficient cavalry.

Events were frequently of a grim nature and at all times exciting. As in the days of the medievalism, the lesser barons held allegiance to more powerful princes, the magnates of the cattle industry, in turn, held a regime presenting strong attraction for adventurers. Thievery and outlawry flourished, but with all its irregularity and roughness, there was a chivalry and code of honor. Certain infractions of the rules brought a swift and unrelenting justice.

The transition from ranges to farms was a stirring period. The change was resisted by the cattlemen in the same spirit and with similar sanguinary accompaniments as the barons of old resisted the despoiling of their feudal powers. But the old order had to give way to the new. The march of law and the establishment of orderliness could not be denied. This story deals with the passing of the range and the breaking up of the range. It is located in a section where the cattlemen were especially antagonistic and resistant where no portion of the range had ever been fenced and where the signs were posted at frequent intervals notifying any would-be homesteader not to tarry in any part of the country.

"Squatter, don't let the sun go down on you." The tale is full of the romance and the thrill of the period. It is made more interesting from the fact that its principal character was a cattlemen who espoused the cause of the homesteaders and had to fight to the extent of his resources on account of the stand he took.

Slade had a flash of sympathy for Slade as she thought his sensations must have been similar to her own when she had looked upon the ruins of the Three Bar. But that was blotted out by the knowledge that he had only met the same treatment he had handed to so many others; that he had dropped into the trap he had built for her. She found no real sympathy for Slade—only fear for Harris since Slade was freed. The old sense of responsibility for her brand had been worn too long to be shed at will. She knew that now.

"I suppose you'll be surprised to hear that I'm going back," she said. Her father's old friend smiled across at her and puffed his pipe. "Surprised?" he said. "Why, I've known all along you'd be going back before long. I could have told you that when you stepped off the train."

He left her alone with Deane when the younger man arrived. She plunged into her subject at once. "I'm sorry," she said. "But I'm going home. I'm not cut out for this—not for long at one time. I want to smell the roundup and fire and slip my twine on a Three Bar calf; to throw my leg across a horse and ride, and feel the wind tearing past. It will always be like that with me. So this is goodbye."

around the one lone space before the roundup time. As the stage rolled down the single street the festivities were in full swing. From one lighted doorway came the blare of a mechanical piano accompanied by the scrape of feet, the sound of drunken voices raised in song issued from the next; the shrill laughter of a dance-hall girl, the purr of the ivory ball and soft clatter of chips, the ponies drowsing at the hitch rails the full length of the street, the peeling yelp of some overenthusiastic citizen whose night it was to howl; all these were evidences of the wide difference between her present surroundings and those of the last eight months. She gazed eagerly out of the stage window. It was good to get back.

As the stage neared the rambling log hotel where she would put up for the night a compact group of riders swung down the street. Her heart seemed to stop as she recognized the big paint-horse at the head. She had not fully realized how much she longed to see Cal Harris.

Instead of dismounting in a group they suddenly split up, as if at a given signal, scattering the length of the block and dismounting singly. There was something purposeful in this act and a vague apprehension superseded the rush of gladness she had experienced with the first unexpected view of the Three Bar crew. Men who stood on the board sidewalks turned hastily inside the open doors as they glimpsed the riders, spreading the news that the Three Bar had come to town. The driver pulled up in front of the one hotel. "It'll come off right now," he said. "Slade's in town."

"Sure," the guard replied. "Why else would Harris ride in at night like this unless in answer to Slade's threat to shoot him down on sight? Get the girl inside."

The reason for the scattering was now clear to her. Slade, on his release, had announced that he would kill Harris on sight whenever he appeared in town. Slade had many friends. The Three Bar men were scattered the length of the street to enforce fair play.

The guard opened the door and motioned her out but she shook her head.

"I'm going to stay here," she asserted.

Her answer informed him of the fact that she was no casual visitor but one who knew the signs and would insist on seeing it through. He nodded and shut the door.

Harris had dismounted at the far end of the block and was strolling slowly down the board sidewalk on the opposite side. Groups of men packed the doorways, each one striving to appear unconcerned, as if his presence there was an accident instead of being occasioned by knowledge that something of interest would soon transpire. A man she knew for a Slade rider moved out to the edge of the sidewalk across the street from Harris. She saw the lumbering form of Waddles edging up beside him. Other Three Bar boys were watching every man who showed a disposition to detach himself from the groups in the doors. The blare of the piano and all sounds of revelry had hushed.

The girl felt the clutch of stark fear at her heart. She had come too late. Harris was to meet Slade. It seemed that she must die with him if he should pass out before she could speak to him again and tell him she was back. She had a wild desire to run to him, at least to lean from the window and call out to him to mount Calico and ride away. But she knew he would not. She was frontier bred. Even the knowledge that she was in town might unsteady him now. She sat without a move and the driver and guard outside supposed her merely a curious on-looker interested in the scene.

"A hundred on Harris," the driver offered.

The guard granted a refusal. "I'll bet that way myself," he said.

From this she knew that the two men were hoping Harris would be the one to survive; but the fact that their proffered bets backed their sentiments was no proof that they felt the conviction of their desire. She knew the men of their breed. No matter how small the chance, their money would inevitably be laid on the side of their wishes, never against them, as if the wagering of a long shot was proof of their confidence and might in some way exercise a favorable influence on the outcome. No man had ever stood against Slade. She noted Harris' gun. He carried it with the same awkward sling as of old, on the left side in front with the butt to the right.

"I'm on Slade," a voice offered from the doorway of the hotel. The guard started for the spot, but the bet was snapped up by another. Wild fighting raged swept through her at the thought that to all these men it was but a sporting event.

Her eyes never once left Harris as he came down the street. When almost abreast of the stage Slade stepped from the doorway twenty feet in front of him and stopped in his tracks. Harris turned on one heel and stood with his left side quartering toward Slade, the old pose she remembered so well. There was a tense quiet the length of the street.

"Those you hire do poor work from behind," Harris said. "Maybe you sometimes take a chance yourself and work from in front." His thumb was hooked in the opening of his shirt just above the butt of his gun.

Slade held a cigarette in his right hand and raised it slowly to his lips. He removed it and flicked the ash from the end, then inspected the results and snapped it again—and the downward move of his wrist was carried through in a smooth sweep for his gun. It flashed into his hand but his knees sagged under him as a forty-five slung struck him an iron above the buckle of his belt. Even as he toppled over he fired, and Harris' gun barked again. Then the Three Bar men were vaulting to their saddles. Evans careened down the street, leading the paint-horse, and within thirty seconds after Slade's first move for his gun a dozen riders were turning the corner on the run. Before the spectators had time to realize that it was over, the Three Bar men were gone. Slade had many friends in town.

The girl had seen Harris' draw, merely a single pull from left to right and by his quivering pose the gun had been trained on Slade the instant it cleared the holster; not one superfluous move, even to the straightening of his wrist. The driver's voice reached her.

"Fastest draw in the world for the few that can use it," he said. The guard opened the door. The girl was sitting with her head bowed in her hands.

"Don't take it that way, ma'am," he consoled. "It was a hard one—Slade."

But he had misread his signs. She felt no regret for Slade, only a wave of thankfulness, so powerful as almost to unnerve her, over Harris' escape, untouched. She accused herself of callousness but the spring of her sympathy, usually so ready, seemed dry as dust when she would have wasted a few drops on Slade.

The next day, in the afternoon, Harris looked up and saw a chap-

"It's been right lonesome planing without a little partner to talk it all over with at night," he said. "Have you come back for keeps to help me make the Three Bar the best outfit in three states? I can't hold down that job alone."

She nodded and leaned against him.

"That's what they wanted—old Bill and Cal," she said. "But it's nice that we want it too. I've come for keeps; and the road to the outside is closed."

They stood and watched the sun pitch over the far edge of the world; and down in the valley below them the hopeful squatters were looking for a place to camp.

He Met Her at the Mouth of the Lane.

clad rider on the edge of the valley. She had ridden over unannounced on a horse she had borrowed from his hat and urged the horse down the slope. He met her at the mouth of the lane and together they walked back to the new buildings of the ranch. The men breaking horses in the new corrals were the same old hands. The same old Waddles presided over the new cook shack. Her old things, rescued from the fire, were arranged in the living room of the new house. A row of new storerooms and the shop stood on the site of the old. And in the midst of all the improvements the old cabin first erected on the Three Bar stood protected by a picket fence on which a few vines were already beginning to climb.

After the men had quit work to greet the returning Three Bar boss she went over every detail of the new house. The big living room and fireplace were modeled closely along the lines of her old quarters; heads and furs were on the walls, pelts and Indian rugs on the floors. Running water had been piped down from a sidehill spring. The new house was modernized. Then Harris saddled Calico and Papoose and they rode down to the fields.

As they turned into the lane they heard the wailing of Waddles' guitar from the back shack, the wailing voice raised in song in mid-afternoon, a thing heretofore unheard in the annals of Three Bar life.

"There'll be one real feast tonight," Harris prophesied. "Waddles will spread himself."

They rode past the meadow, covered with a knee-deep stand of alfalfa hay.

"It was only trampled down," he said. "She came up in fine shape this spring. We'll put up a thousand tons of hay."

He held straight on past the meadow, turned off below the lower fence and angled southwest across the range. The calves and yearlings along their route gave proof that the grading-up of the Three Bar herds was already having its effect. Ninety per cent were straight red stock with only a few throwbacks to off-color strains. The two spoke but little and near sunset they rode out and dismounted on the ridge from which, almost a year before, they had viewed the first move of organized law in the Coldriver strip.

A white-topped wagon came toward them up the valley along the same route followed by the file of dusty riders on that other day. A woman held the reins over the team and a curly-haired youngster jostled about on the seat by her side. A man wrangled a nondescript drove of horses and cows in the rear.

"That's the way we both came into this country, first, you and I," Harris said. "Just like that little shaver on the seat."

"Will they find a place to settle?" she asked, with a sudden hope that the newcomers would find a suitable site for a game.

"Maybe not close around here," he said. "Most of the good sites

NEARBY and YONDER... by T. T. Maxey

Lake Tahoe

LAKE TAHOE—that noble sheet of the bluest of blue and the greenest of green water—lies near the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains and straddles the boundary line between Nevada and California. It is the second deepest lake in America and the largest at its altitude, save one, in the world.

It has a shore line of some 75 miles, an area of about 200 square miles, with depths ranging from a few feet to a quarter of a mile, and is over 6,000 feet above sea level. The Indians were the original discoverers—Tahoe being Indian for "Big Water." John C. Fremont, the pathfinder, came upon it in 1844. The rocky shore of the lake is bordered by great forests of cedar and pine trees which are walled in by high peaks, often snow covered, some of which pierce the sky to a height of about 11,000 feet.

The greatest and most fascinating charm of the "liquid mountain mirror" comes from the rare and charming beauty as the color combinations which make up the picture shift from hour to hour and day to day, according to the weather and with the coming or going of the sun, moon and clouds. "It is said to have 'as many moods as a woman.'" Mountain shadows photograph themselves in its placid surface and produce fairy-like pictures. The grandest view of all, perhaps, comes when the opalescent colors of approaching sunset chase themselves across its surface and climax in an alpine glow.

Seeing Ourselves as Others See Us

(This piece of publicity has been sent all over the country from a Minneapolis advertising agency.)

When "Broncho Billy" of Essanay Film Company fame was in his prime, the foothills surrounding Niles, California, were the setting for his holdups and the townspeople called every member of his company from "Billy" to the property man, by their first names. It was nothing at all to see beautiful leading ladies canter up the main street to "location" in the hills.

The sunlight in Niles is "just right" for photographing and as a western setting nothing more could have been desired.

But the day of westerns and bold bad men waned; the movie fans demanded more sophisticated plays or comics and "Billy" and his troupe moved on, each to another field.

Meanwhile, Niles, always a center for fruit ranches and homes, continued to improve its streets and homes and olive covered hills. The San Jose Mission "up the highway" a few miles acquired the first new roof since it was built by the early Franciscan fathers. The famous ranches of the old Spanish families gradually became modernized until today a modern "up to the minute" community supplants the town that once was a setting for movie thrillers.

The W. B. Foshay Company has added Niles to its other California interests by purchasing the Citizens' Water Company to be grouped with Public Utilities California Corporation, a subsidiary to Public Utilities Consolidated Corporation.

Everywhere around Niles small homes are being built. It begins to look as though the prophecy of far visioned Californians is to be realized and that Niles and the community to the north will one day join in a great city and all of it be an integral part of San Francisco and Oakland.

The Register will do your printing job without unnecessary delay.

DON'T FAIL TO SEE "PENROD" FRIDAY

Everybody and everybody's grandma will be at the Washington Union high school Friday evening to see the presentation of "Penrod" by a cast chosen from the student body. From all reports this is to be the best amateur theatrical the community has had the opportunity of seeing for some time. Everybody who needs a dose of merriment is advised to come early and get a good seat for there's a laugh in every line.

Miss Laura Taylor who has proved herself an able director of high school plays is in charge. Her cast consists of George Coley, Elizabeth Shinn, Marie White, Catherine Sullivan, George Robinson, Edward Wargin, Mabel Fyffe, Eugene Dusterberry, Gertrude Ellsworth, Morris Silva, Edward Witherly, Clarence Lucas, Mary Lucas, Lloyd Hygelund, Mary George, Alice Lemas, Sam Kearns. Remember, Friday, Feb. 15, at 8 o'clock at the Washington Union high school at Centerville.

JUDGE SPENCE NAMED LEGION COMMITTEE MAN

Superior Judge Homer R. Spence, of Alameda county, who has many friends in the township, has been named a member of the 1930 national legislative committee of the American Legion by National Commander Paul V. McNutt.

One of the principal measures which the committee will sponsor at the present session will be the universal draft bill, providing for the drafting of capital and labor as well as soldiers and sailors.

Judge Spence is one of the leading jurists of the state. Prior to his selection as private secretary to Governor Young, from which position he was named to the bench, he was a member of the legislature.

WILL NILES BOYS BE CHAMPIONS OF "WORLD SERIES?"

The members of the American Legion junior baseball league of the township will be interested in the announcement that preparations are being made for the 1930 national junior baseball series for the championship of the United States.

Dan Sowers, director of the American Legion's "little world series" will visit in California this week. The Montgomery Ward boys, of Oakland, won the national championship last year.

AMERICAN LEGION STAGES ANOTHER DANCE SUCCESS

Another example of the ability of Washington Township's post, American Legion, to successfully complete any project they undertake was the "Mystery Dance" at the Garden of Allah Saturday night. The hall was filled to capacity.

Although those attending failed to discover much of the "mystery" advertised, the affair was considered an unquestioned success. Couples from all over the township and from more distant points were present.

SCHOOL AT VALLE VISTA CLOSED BY SCARLET FEVER

Valle Vista school was closed last week because of scarlet fever, according to J. L. Bunker, grammar school supervisor.

Weekly Chats With Lovers of Books

THE PART OF THE LIBRARY
IN ADULT EDUCATION

That the librarian shall be as important a factor as the formal teacher or the lecturer, perhaps the most important and inspiring factor in the new day when we shall have a system of adult education which shall reach every man and woman as we are now reaching the child, is the opinion of Dr. John H. Finley, former commissioner of education of the State of New York.

This statement was included in excerpts of an article, "The Part of the Library in Adult Education," from the Journal of the American Association of University Women, quoted at the annual meeting of the Niles Library Association.

"Preparation for self-directed education is coming to be recognized as the chief function of our schools. Text books furnish merely the guiding outlines for exploratory reading. School life, therefore, is inevitably centering more and more around the library and the school library is now frequently referred to as the very heart of the institution.

"In this lifetime of education which 'matriculates' us at the cradle and graduates us at the grave, what are the functions of the library?

"To some, adult education means the teaching of reading to illiterates; to a few, it means the Americanization of the foreign born; to others, it signifies vocational training. But adult education goes far beyond all these. It is based on a recognition of the great truth that education is a lifelong process, and that the university graduate, as well as the man of little schooling, is in constant need of further training, inspiration, and mental growth; that the training obtained in school and college is necessarily limited to fundamentals and that the real development of the individual lies in the independent effort of later years.

"Education finds its truest and highest level when the hunger for knowledge and expression awakens in the hearts of men and women.

"In the scheme for general adult education, provision must be made, not only for men and women of exceptional ability and purpose, but for those on the common level, whose capacity and desire for learning is not so obvious. Such provision will in time inevitably remove that inequality in opportunity, especially noticeable in rural districts, that contraction of the mental and spiritual horizon, and, finally, will encourage and develop cultural aspiration among the whole rank and file of the nation's citizenry, thereby doing much to realize the hope and ideal of any democracy—the intelligence of all its people.

"Public libraries have an obligation and a responsibility in their support of adult education that cannot be avoided.

"The American nation's faith is in the power of thought—the ennobling and strengthening values of the things of the mind. Acting upon faith, the public library by offering increasingly effective service to persons of all ages, educated or uneducated, eagerly promotes the advancement of learning.

"Immigrants may be aided in becoming better Americans; the stranger may be made at home. The efficient public library will aid the inquirer in the wise choice of the book suited to his individual need. The success of the modern public library is dependent not alone on more adequate funds for the purchase, housing and proper care of books but also on its ability to attract to its staff persons of training and scholarship, possessing those human and sympathetic qualities of mind that will win the confidence and respect of all seekers after knowledge.

"The library owes consulting and advisory service to offer advice in the choice of books, etc. It should be able to furnish information regarding all lecture courses, private classes, night schools, etc.

"Many public libraries are struggling along under appropriations insufficient to render one quarter of the service they should be giving their communities. Only an intelligent informed public

WHY THE PREMIUM

THE two cent premium you pay for Ethyl over ordinary gasoline, represents the actual cost of the Ethyl fluid added to the gasoline and is not really an added cost when you realize that it is quickly returned to you in reduced operating costs and lessened depreciation—plus vastly improved motor performance!

Forty-two of the greatest oil companies in the world purchase ETHYL brand of anti-knock compound to add to their gasoline, because they know it is the only genuine anti-knock, high compression ingredient that is commercially practical.

Developed after seven years of intensive research, the expenditure of vast sums of money and the testing of more than 33,000 separate chemical compounds, Ethyl has made it possible to develop the modern high compression motor for everyday commercial use. The increased speed and power, added smoothness and flexibility, the reduced fuel consumption and lowered operating costs that go with high compression are possible only because of Ethyl.

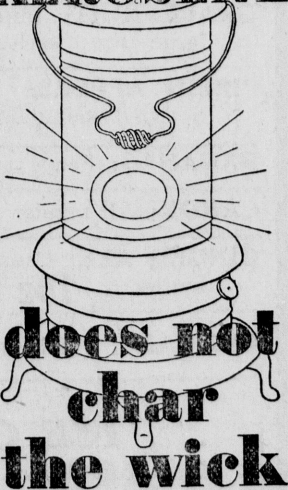

The tremendous success of Ethyl gasoline, and the fact that it costs a few cents more to produce, has brought many imitators, marketing so-called high compression gasolines, totally inferior in quality and results. Insist on genuine Ethyl—sold only by authorized distributors from pumps that bear the Ethyl trade mark.

Tea On Time

EVERY housewife knows how difficult it is to have food on hand that will be just the thing to serve when an unexpected guest drops in during the afternoon. How much more difficult must it be for a moving picture actress with her rush of work to accomplish that feat. Yet Esther Ralston does, says Betty Standish writing in Motion Picture Magazine. So when she offers advice on preparing tea in double quick time her words are of value.

Simple and Delicious

Her menu is this:

Special Mixture of Teas
Raisin Filling Cookies
Ginger Ale Salad
Cream Cheese and Bar-le-Duc Sandwiches

The cookies are kept on hand all times. And of course the "makings" of the tea and sandwiches are always ready.

To make the salad, drain one and one-half cups of syrup from a can of pears. Heat to the boiling point and add four tablespoons of gelatin which have been soaked in four tablespoons of cold water; add four tablespoons sugar and a few grains of salt. When cool, add one-half cup of lemon juice and one pint of ginger ale. When it is beginning to set, stir in two cups of canned pears, four tablespoons of ginger, and one-third cup of Maraschino cherries and the juice. Dice both cherries and pears in small pieces. Turn into individual molds which have been rubbed with salad oil. Serve with equal portions of mayonnaise and whipped cream in lettuce.

BOY SCOUT TROOP MAKING PLANS

Committee of Citizens To Assist Boys In New Program

Reorganization of the Niles Boy Scout committee will take place at a meeting to be held this evening, members of the committee being H. B. Rathbun, A. F. Johnson, Donald Yslas, A. M. Alves, Jack Gelbs, J. E. Townsend.

B. L. Webb will act as advisor to the troop which will continue under the leadership of Morrison Greene, acting scout-master and Marshall Greene, assistant scout-master.

Plans are to be made by the committee regarding the new uniforms, summer camp, week end trips, etc., also to outline projects which will benefit the community as well as the scouts themselves.

At present there are 25 scouts registered and it is planned to enlarge that number to 50. It has been decided that at least one committee member will accompany the scouts on all their excursions and also be present at each of their meetings.

"We expect to support the acting-scoutmaster to the extent that the Niles troop will be one of the outstanding troops in the county and one that the township will be proud of," stated J. E. Townsend, speaking for the committee.

LIVERMORE TOWN COLLECTS $630.00 IN JANUARY FINES

(From the Livermore Journal)

In compliance with the new ruling hereafter the Chief of Police of the town of Livermore will submit a monthly report of the arrests made, amounts of fines collected and also the number of arrests made by each officer.

The following is the report of Chief of Police L. E. Wright for the month of January:

with state officials making them a mockery—a snide, a thing to be ridiculed.

Faith! What of that?

Why have faith in law and the evenness of judicial dispensation, with state power flaunting such procedure in the face of honest men, who, in spite of repeated acts of judicial anarchy, still cling tenaciously to respect for laws and courts.

But what of the criminally inclined? What of these! Indeed, what of these. May we expect the lawless to grow better and more respectful of the statutes, when such acts dwelt upon in this article, even the densest brain may understand as anything but fair and equitable.

The perverted female. What of her? Indeed, what of her! May we expect the married adultress to stop at murder to rid herself of an incumbance contracted in marriage,

To expect—

Bah, we expect nothing!

THE NEW SUPERIOR

Whippet

WORLD'S GREATEST SEDAN VALUES!

With the New "Finger-Tip Control"

The greatest advance in driving convenience since the self-starter. A single button in the center of the steering wheel controls all functions of starting the motor, sounding the horn and operating the lights.

With all its many improvements, with its greater beauty, longer wheelbase, larger body, new "Finger-Tip Control" and more powerful higher compression engine, the Superior Whippet Four Sedan is still the world's lowest-priced four-door enclosed car. And the new Superior Whippet Six Sedan is the world's lowest-priced six-cylinder four-door enclosed car to offer the important advantages of seven-bearing crankshaft, "Finger-Tip Control," silent timing chain, full force-feed lubrication and Nelson type aluminum alloy invariat pistons.

Never have Fours and Light Sixes been distinguished by such beauty and style as are now winning nationwide praise for the new Superior Whippet. Its grace of line, its harmony of color, its longer bodies, its higher radiator and hood, its sweeping one-piece full crown fenders, make the new Superior Whippet the style triumph of master designers.

The larger bodies give more spacious interiors, with broader seats and extra leg room. Other important factors in riding comfort are the oversize balloon tires, snubbers and longer springs both front and rear.

In performance, the new Superior Whippet is speedier, livelier and more powerful. Long service will prove its dependability and economical operation. See and examine the new Superior Whippet at your first opportunity! An immediate order will aid in obtaining early delivery.
